

Mr. Kantchev joined the former Technical Cooperation Department, nowadays the Telecommunication Development Bureau (BDT), of the International Telecommunication Union, Switzerland, in 1986. His current responsibilities as Senior Sound and Television Broadcasting Engineer and Coordinator of the Technology and Applications Group (TAG) are related, inter alia, to the provision of advice and consultation to the sound and television broadcasting organizations from the developing world, frequently visiting these countries on short missions.

Prior to his association with the ITU, he worked first for the Ministry of Communications, Bulgaria, later for the National Bulgarian Television and broadcasting industry on a wide range of matters related to sound and TV broadcasting.

He participated actively in Study Groups 1 and 3 of the former OIRT and participates in the work of several ITU-D, ITU-R and ITU-T study groups and working parties.

He graduated from the Technical University of Sofia, Bulgaria, with an MSc Engineering degree in high frequency radiocommunications in 1967.
