Helga Waage is the CTO of Hex software. She is the architect of the Hexia system - a mobile application server using a multi-modal AI based dialog control system. Helga holds a Masters degree in Computer science (Artificial Intelligence) from the University of Pittsburgh.

She has 15 years of experience in the IT industry and has an extensive experience in software project management, from initial design to general availability. She has 8 years of experience in the telecommunications industry and has managed several successful multi-national projects in collaboration with companies such as Scansoft, Ericsson and Intel.   Among these projects are heterogeneous distributed mobile applications were knowledge of the strengths and limitations of the various client devices – from dumb SMS based clients to smart PC clients - were crucial to the success of the projects.

Helga is a respected member of the research community in Iceland. She has held various positions on behalf of the Ministry of Education, the Icelandic research fund and the Association of computer scientists to name a few.

She is a frequent speaker on issues such as voice technologies, software design methodologies and technological research.