

GEORGE MANSHO

George Mansho is Vice President, Business Development at QUALCOMM Incorporated, a Fortune 500 leader of digital wireless communications products and services. QUALCOMM is based in San Diego California. Since January, 2005, Mr. Mansho has been on loan to the CDMA Development Group (“CDG”) from QUALCOMM. Mr. Mansho is acting in a representative capacity for the CDG.

The CDG is an international consortium of companies that have joined together to lead the adoption and evolution of Code Division Multiple Access (“CDMA”) wireless systems around the world. The CDG is based in Costa Mesa, California and is comprised of the worlds leading CDMA service providers and manufacturers. By working together, the members help to ensure interoperability among systems, while expediting the availability of CDMA technology to consumers.

At QUALCOMM, Mr Mansho has served in several senior management positions, including Senior Vice President, Business Development of QUALCOMM's CDMA Technology(“QCT”) group, a four billion dollar semiconductor company supplying chip sets and software products for both the CDMA and WCDMA markets. Mr Mansho also served as Corporate Senior Vice President for Global Business Development focused on mergers and acquisitions, strategic alliances and investments. Mr. Mansho was also General Manager of QUALCOMM's Omnitrac's international business providing two-way data messaging service for the commercial transportation market with operations in Europe, Latin America and Asia. Mr. Mansho joined QUALCOMM in 1994 where he was initially part of the technology transfer team involved in marketing, negotiating and licensing QUALCOMM's CDMA technologies to global manufacturers for the manufacture and sale of CDMA equipment.

Prior to joining QUALCOMM, Mr. Mansho held management and legal positions with Ball Corporation, a Fortune 500 packaging and aerospace company based in Broomfield, Colorado.

Mr. Mansho holds a Bachelor of Arts and Sciences degree as well as a Juris Doctorate degree from the University of Colorado, Boulder, Colorado. He is licensed to practice law in the state of Colorado and the 10th Federal Circuit Court.