

Dr. Eun-Ju Kim

Dr. Kim is currently Regional Director of ITU Regional Office for Asia and the Pacific based in Bangkok, Thailand, while representing ITU which is the UN Specialized Agency for telecommunications/ICTs and serving some 40 Member States in this dynamic region.

She has been educated from the Seoul National University in Republic of Korea for the first Master Degree; the London City University in the United Kingdom for the second Master and Ph. Degrees; and the Harvard Kennedy School in the USA for the Executive Education.

To serve member countries more effectively and strategically for their inclusive and sustainable development of ICTs in different phases through optimizing digital opportunities in the interdependent knowledge society, she has been pursuing close cooperations and partnerships - especially Public-Private-Peoples' Partnerships (4Ps) - with multi-stakeholders such as UN Agencies; international, regional, sub-regional and national organizations; regulators; private industry; research institutes; development banks; NGOs and academia in addition to ITU Administrations.

She has been awarded by the Ministers of R. O. Korea (1994) and Mongolia (2001) with the Medal respectively; ITU (2009) with the Medal; and the President of Mongolia (2011) with the Medal.
