

Severino Ramos Camilo

Graduated in Electronic Engineering from the Escola Nacional de Engenharia da Universidade Federal do Rio de Janeiro in 1971. He has since worked in Telecommunications with Standard Electric, Telebras and ANATEL.

During his 16 years at TELEBRAS he has coordinated tasks for designing and deploying all mobile systems starting in Rio de Janeiro, Brasília, São Paulo and others cities throughout Brazil. He has coordinated the specification of the Roaming network for Brazil based on the ANSI-41 protocol and has participated in most ITU IMT-2000 meetings since 1994.

Since October 1999 he is working for Qualcomm, as Senior Manager of Development Business, supporting CDMA Operating Companies, Relations with Government affairs and participating in congresses, summits and fairs to promote CDMA technologies.