Saba Tiku is a youth advocate for digital governance, with a background in Bsc. Electronic Communication Engineering. She is passionate about promoting youth voices, and fostering sustainable development through technology. Saba is one of the members of the IGF 2024 Multi-stakeholder Advisory Group (MAG), coordinator of the Ethiopian Youth IGF, steering committee member; representing the African region at the Youth Coalition on Internet Governance (YCIG), Generation Connect Youth Envoy at the International Telecommunication Union, and an observer at Global Internet Governance Academic Network (GigaNet). She is also an Internet Society alumna, and a mentor for the youth ambassadors program (2023 cohort). She actively participates in various policy networks, public consultations, and research projects.

Saba is currently AI Policy Research Fellow at the Center for AI and Digital Policy (CAIDP) and THINC Fellow exploring the topic of tech for impact. In her personal life, she likes photography and travelling.