

Samantha Kight

Samantha Kight is the Head of Industry Security at the GSMA, driving the Security and Fraud direction of the GSMA and working with the industry to execute key initiatives within this space. She is integral in building and maintaining links between Chief Security Officers across the Mobile Network Operators, providing a platform for Telecommunication security to be discussed and represented globally.

Prior to joining the GSMA she worked within a Mobile Network Operator Group and local market function. She has a diverse background having worked across the non-profit, corporate and association sectors. She holds a Bachelor's and Master's degree from the University of Technology, Sydney.