

Tae Young Um

Researcher, Korea Internet & Security Agency

Tae Young Um is the Researcher of the Korea Internet & Security Agency (KISA), a government agency under the Ministry of Science and ICT that carries out Korea's information and communications services, especially internet security. She held various positions in the areas of human rights and environmental management. She conducted the human rights due diligence on agency for five years, and contributed the carbon reductions of the agency's main businesses which is based on cloud & blockchain services. She is currently leading a trend research in blockchain industry in Korea and managing the 'blockchain specialized cluster creation project' in Busan, aims to foster & support blockchain companies. She holds dual degree in Business Administration and Economics.