Call-Back and other practices not in accordance with the relevant regulations

Egypt

Communication of 11.III.1999*:

Telecom Egypt, Cairo, announces that as a result of telecommunication deregulation and liberalization in some countries, important changes have taken place in the international environment and as a consequence voice over internet, voice over IPLC (International Private Leased Circuits) and leaky PABX have appeared. However, for the time being, such practices are not in accordance with the relevant regulations of Telecom Egypt and, since Telecom Egypt is the only licensed carrier to transmit voice in Egypt, there is no other carrier holding a license. Telecom Egypt hereby formally notifies that practices such as outgoing calls by any foreign communication partners of Telecom Egypt are prohibited in Egypt, as has been declared in local newspapers.

It is illegal for any ISP (Internet Service Provider) to provide, sell or market the service of any voice over the IP (Internet Protocol) network in Egypt. It is also illegal for companies using voice over Internet, to market or sell directly or indirectly in the territory of Egypt or through third party, taking into consideration that some trials are in a process for providing special software, and installing equipment for stopping such practices.
