

ITU Regional Development Forum 2008
"Bridging the Standardization Gap in Developing Countries"
Accra, Ghana, 26-28 May 2008

Facilitating remote participation in ITU activities

Dr Tim Kelly,
Head, Standardization Policy
Division, ITU-T

Why remote participation?

- To assist in bridging the standardization gap, especially for delegates from developing countries
- To provide training materials (archived on web)
- To make participation in short meetings more efficient (e.g. steering committees, seminars, rapporteur groups)
- To reduce carbon footprint

Segmenting the market

Remote collaboration tools (1)

ITU e-Learning Centre

Knowledge is a competitive advantage

The ITU e-Learning Centre was established in 2002 to provide opportunities for continuous learning and skills development. Many Online Courses and eCommunities are organized each year covering various topics on telecommunications and human resources development. Participation in our instructor-led online courses is by invitation only.

Returning User?

If you have previously participated in an Online Course or eCommunity offered through the ITU e-Learning Centre, either as a student, tutor or teaching assistant, you may sign in here

A few chilling statistics in a world that is heating up ...

- Replacing 20% of business travel in the EU could save some 22.3 million tonnes of CO₂ per year
- A single participant (from Buenos Aires) would account for 2.5 tonnes of CO₂ in a single trip to Geneva
- More than two-thirds of ITU delegates had round-trips of more than 10'000 km in 2007

Possible future scenarios

- Increasing share of ITU meetings held outside Geneva or in cyberspace
 - Workshops and symposia, Webinars
 - Regional block meetings
- Distributed participation in ITU meetings
 - Broadcast (two-way audio/video) to regional offices of Centres of Excellence, allowing for local interaction and participation
- Increased use of remote collaboration tools
 - Full-scale use of existing tools after trial period?
 - ITU-T workshops in Second Life?
