

André Coy

Andre Coy is a lecturer in the Department of Physics at the University of the West Indies, Mona. Dr. Coy has previously worked at McGill University and as a research associate jointly with the university of Sheffield and Barnsley Hospital NHS Foundation Trust. The team developed a portable device employing speech recognition and text-to-speech technology to aid communication in individuals with speech impairment. André's interests include automatic speech recognition and its applications, machine learning, artificial intelligence and assistive technologies.