

Stacey Hines

Stacey is an inspiring and results driven leader focused on achieving transformation in highly complex environments with businesses and individuals. With over twenty years' experience in business information systems and over ten years' experience in marketing, team leadership, business systems development and project management, Stacey creates significant impact in organizations through merging the development of people and culture with digital transformation strategies. She holds an MBA in International Business and Technology as well as a BSc in Computer Information Systems. Stacey's current role at ICD is Head of Group Strategic Planning, where she is responsible for the company's transformation portfolio and spends most of her time focusing on 5 of the 9 entities supporting them with strategies in technology, marketing, leadership and culture. She is also Chairman of the Board for Lifespan Spring Water and DRT Communications Ltd, and Director of new Technology Innovation Services startup "Innovate 10X". She is a mother of 3 wonderful children, as well as an entrepreneur and author.