

Biography

Nuha Eltinay is an award-winning spatial planner and a Licentiate Member of the British Royal Town Planning Institute (RTPI), MA holder of International Planning and Sustainable Development from University of Westminster, and PhD Researcher at London South Bank University (LSBU). Appointed as the Director of Urban Planning and Sustainable Development for the period 2014-2019 at the Arab Urban Development Institute, Nuha is working towards the implementation of the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction (DRR) in the Arab Region, framed around developing a Policy Guidance for Building Urban Resilience in the MENA Region (Arab States) - 'The context of Climate Change, Conflict and Displacement'.