Background [max 300 words]

Following the outcomes of the 2019 RDF for Europe, the ITU Seminar for Europe and CIS was scheduled for July 2020. The Seminar should consider the future challenges to be addressed in broadcasting and in spectrum management to ensure that Europe and CIS regions are equipped with relevant measures and effective tools. It should also discuss, in particular:

- World Radiocommunication Conference 19 (WRC-19) and preparation for WRC-23
- Strategic planning and policies for wireless innovation in Europe and CIS
- Spectrum management and the future of 5G
- Economics of spectrum in the context of 5G
- Tendering of 5G frequencies
- Electromagnetic fields and 5G implementation
- Measurement methods and tools
- Digital broadcasting
- International frequency coordination

This Seminar should be organized within the framework of the ITU Regional Initiative for Europe on Broadband Infrastructure, Broadcasting and Spectrum Management and the ITU Regional Initiative for CIS on Fostering innovative solutions and partnership for the implementation of Internet of things technologies and their interaction in telecommunication networks, including 4G, IMT-2020 and next-generation networks, in the interests of sustainable development adopted by the WTDC-17.

Proposal [max 400 words]

Taking into account COVID-19 related situation, it was agreed to change the format of delivering 2020 seminar from face-to-face into online meeting.

NMHH committed to continue supporting organization of the seminar.

All administrations and relevant stakeholders are kindly encouraged to support preparations of the Seminar as well as regional cooperation in field of spectrum management and broadcasting.

NMHH is also committed to host the 2021 event focusing on spectrum management and broadcasting as face-to-face seminar to be held in Budapest.
