
The impact of unequal access to ICT infrastructure on the Geography of COVID-19

BIO

Prof Emanuele Giovannetti, Professor of Economics at Anglia Ruskin University

Emanuele Giovannetti (PhD, MPhil Cantab, Trinity College) is Professor of Economics at Anglia Ruskin University, Governing Body Fellow at Hughes Hall, University of Cambridge, Vice-Rapporteur for the Study Group 1 of the International Telecommunications Union, Developments Bureau. Prior to this, Emanuele was Associate Professor in Economics at the University of Cape Town and the University of Verona and Senior Research Associate at the Department of Applied Economics of the University of Cambridge where he led the FP7 project Cocombine (Competition contents and broadband for the Internet in Europe).

His research focuses on Market power in the Internet, Mobile Internet access, ICT platforms, Digital divide, Crowdfunding, Diffusion of mobile social networking and Adoption of new technologies. He has advised governments, competition authorities and businesses in Europe, Africa and Asia on Internet access and competition economics, and has led multidisciplinary and multinational projects focussing on network competition, Internet infrastructure and mobile access in developing countries.

Emanuele published on leading academic journals including International Economic Review, Economic Journal, Environment and Planning A, International Journal of Industrial Organization, International Journal of Production Economics, Journal of Industrial Economics, Technological Forecasting and Social Change, International Journal of Forecasting, Review of Network Economics, Information Economics and Policy, Spatial Economic Analysis, Journal of Economic Surveys. He edited a special issue of Telecommunications Policy on "Peering and Roaming in the Internet" and co-edited "The Internet Revolution: A Global Perspective" published by Cambridge University Press.