Abstract:

In this talk the cyber threats against telecommunication networks will be described with ties to real life examples and cases. Special attention is put on the modern era technologies like AI and Machine Learning and how these developments shape the landscape around. The talk will share insights in the challenges met, focus on how AI or ML could be used to solve them and present couple fundamental questions to the audience to take home.