

DocRep Team

Patient Baraka: He is the Founder and CTO of IMALI.biz (a first Rwandan classifieds webapp). He is a computer programmer with more than 7 years of experience in the IT sector and has been leading the development of various local web applications. Baraka's interests and research areas include Mobile and Web applications, Data mining, Cloud computing and DOA. Mr Baraka is currently the Software developer lead at BK TechHouse Ltd and also serves as a programmer tutor at Programage Ltd. Prior to joining BK TechHouse Ltd, he has been a Software developer at RWANDAONLINE PLATORM Ltd (2016), PIVOT ACCESS Ltd (2014) and the Chief Programmer Officer at IGIHE Ltd (2011), whereby during his tenure he lead a number of developments of different applications. While at IGIHE Ltd, he lead the team that managed the project of computerizing the library and courses at RDF Command and Staff College. In close partnership with Microsoft 4 Africa innovation pillar, in the aim to empower African youth, entrepreneurs, developers, business and civic leaders to turn great ideas into a reality that can help their community, their country, the continent, and beyond, Mr Baraka is among the team that developed a Point of Sale (iPOS), which was piloted to help citizens in their business. Mr Baraka holds a Masters of Science in IT from Carnegie Mellon University (CMU) and B.S in Computer science and systems from the former National University of Rwanda (NUR).

Gabin Kaningu: He is a software engineer with more than 4 years in software development and implementation. He studied computer applications in Bangalore university. His primary focus and inspiration was Web Application Development. He worked on fleet management solutions using java script as well as HTML,CSS, JavaScript. Since 2014 he have worked on the implementation and customization of an enterprise resource planning solution for a government financial institution. He successfully completed the DOA training organized by RURA. In his current position he provides software solutions for different business vertical such as retail, manufacturing companies, warehouse management. He constantly experiments with new technologies and techniques.

Alodie Iradukunda: Alodie Iradukunda is a young, driven Rwandan woman who has over the years developed a passion for entrepreneurship and its ability to change lives. With a degree in computer science, she hopes to use the skills she has been equipped with to empower the youth and girls in particular, to transform their nation for the better, and seek to contribute to its development. She believes in the power that is technology in being a tool of betterment of societies. Throughout her experiences, she has sought after ways of bringing to the table tools and solutions to problems communities in Rwanda face. Her goal is to simply be an agent of positive change, with the hope that she can inspire others to do so.

