

Femi Oke

Journalist

Femi Oke is an award-winning international journalist, broadcaster, professional moderator and co-founder of the diverse all-female moderators bureau "Moderate The Panel." Based in Washington, D.C where she hosted the interactive news and current affairs show "The Stream" on Al Jazeera English for a decade, Femi is a correspondent for the Al Jazeera documentary series "Fault Lines", and the social media correspondent for NPR's midday news program "Here & Now."

Femi's reporting has been recognized by the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS), the African Communications Agency and InterAction. Since the 1980s, she has worked for BBC television and radio, Sky TV, all the U.K. terrestrial television networks, CNN, U.S. public radio and Al Jazeera. As a professional moderator Femi has presided over world class events including European Development Days for the European Commission, NBA Africa Celebratory Luncheon for the U.S. National Basketball Association, the UN Secretary-General's UNGA Climate Roundtable and the UNDP's Annual Human Development Report. A world class 'infotainer' her exuberance rubs off on speakers and the audience, transforming regular events into unforgettable ones.
